

Tabletop Material Selection

Tabletop material selection is a critical decision in furniture design. It involves choosing a material that is not only aesthetically pleasing but also durable and functional. The material should complement the overall design and provide the desired look and feel. Common materials include wood, stone, metal, and glass. Each material has its own characteristics and requires specific care and maintenance. The selection process should consider factors such as cost, availability, and the intended use of the table. The chosen material should be able to withstand the wear and tear of daily use while maintaining its appearance over time.
